WELCOME to Jacobs Field!

Dear Indians Fans:

The 2003 Major League Baseball season will be the 10th at Jacobs Field. Many memorable moments have been created in that short period of time — two World Series, an All-Star Game, 29 post-season games. Last at-bat heroics . . . too many to count!

It all started with a group of talented young players who, when given the opportunity to establish themselves at the Major League level, developed into a series of teams that put Cleveland back on the baseball map. Record-setting performances on the field and in the seats followed, thanks to the passion of Tribe fans.

We are poised to repeat that same success story. In a short period of time, General Manager Mark Shapiro and his staff have fortified the foundation of the team — our player development system — which is ranked at the top among all 30 MLB teams according to a number of national baseball publications. We have taken a large step in the process of identifying the players who will become the building blocks of our future success.

The job is not done, however, as manager Eric Wedge often states. The next step is developing the young players and providing the opportunity to perform at the Major League level. Together we look forward to the 2003 season with excitement as we begin to build and sustain a championship team in an environment of superior sports entertainment at Jacobs Field.

Your enjoyment of Indians Baseball is our main priority — whether you choose to enjoy listening on the Indians Radio Network with flagship station WTAM, watching on FOX Sports Net, accessing via our website at indians.com, reading the newspaper, or visiting Jacobs Field.

While 2003 is the 10th season at Jacobs Field, it is also the 103rd season as a Charter Member of the American League. Professional baseball in Cleveland is one of the city's oldest traditions. With that rich heritage comes a civic trust.

We pledge our commitment to a supportive community that understands the important connection between Indians Baseball at Jacobs Field and the significant economic impact this link creates for Northeast Ohio.

Here's hoping we see you often at Jacobs Field.

Sincerely,

Larry Dolan
President and Chief Executive Officer

10 THE CLEVELAND INDIANS

Check out these full-page photos of the Tribe. You know the veterans. Now you can get to know the Indians young athletes.

32 REMEMBERING A CLEVELAND LEGEND by Chuck Murr

Mel Harder, who passed away last October, was one of the greatest pitchers to ever wear an Indians uniform. He was also one of the team's best pitching coaches – credited with developing the talents of other members of the team's pitching elite.

You may have noticed that each member of the Tribe is wearing a circular patch on his jersey that features the number 18 – Mel Harder's number, which the Indians have retired.

As a special tribute to celebrate the legacy of Indians Hall of Fame outfielder Larry Doby (who passed away in June), Tribe players are wearing a rectangular black arm patch with #14 DOBY above Mel Harder's #18 circle patch.*

48 STRIVING TO BE NO. 1 by Jim Ingraham

Tribe pitcher C.C. Sabathia was elected to his first Major League All-Star Team this year – in just his third season in the Majors . . . and at the ripe old age of 22.

The Cleveland Indians 2003 Community Spirit of Partnership

The Cleveland Indians are proud to serve the Northeast Ohio community by providing a variety of educational, recreational, and humanitarian programs for Tribe fans of all ages. Programs are designed to improve the quality of life of those less fortunate, to support youth in reaching their full potential, and to foster self-confidence. We embrace the opportunity to be a responsible corporate citizen serving the Greater Cleveland communities.

John McDonald's Father's Day Contest

This season, second baseman John McDonald will make Father's Day extra special for fathers everywhere. The program, "Mac & Me" will allow Tribe fans under the age of 18 a chance to enter their name in a raffle and win A Day at Jacobs Field with Johnny Mac and his dad!

One hundred names will be randomly drawn to select the winners as special guests of John and his father. Winners will enjoy lunch at Jacobs Field, receive a special Mac & Me t-shirt, observe batting practice, and meet John, his dad, and other Tribe players prior to the game.

Outfielder Matt Lawton (above) and second baseman John McDonald (right) take part in programs that bring area fans to Jacobs Field.

Lawton's Little Leaguers

For the second season, outfielder Matt Lawton will once again bring hundreds of local youth to attend a Tribe game this summer. "Lawton's Little Leaguers" is open to local non-profit organizations serving disadvantaged youth in Northeast Ohio. Each "Lawton's Little Leaguers" participant will enjoy a boxed lunch, see batting practice, receive a "Lawton's Little Leaguers" t-shirt, and meet Matt before the game.

Striving To Be No. 1

By Jim Ingraham

They are a rare breed, perhaps the rarest commodity of all in baseball.

A No.1 starter.

“Our ability to protect him in our rotation helped,” said Shapiro. “In 2001, we won our division, and had a pretty good staff around C.C. – and he always had that great fallback insurance policy of a 98 mph fastball.”

Although he won 30 games in his first two years, Sabathia had a better first half in 2003 than he had in either of his first two years in the league.

He says he feels like he has made tremendous progress from his rookie year, though quickly adding that he still has much to learn.

“The biggest difference between now and when I was a rookie,” he says, “is that I’ve learned more about how to pitch to many players. I’ve been around a couple of years, so I know the hitters better. My mechanics are better, and I think I’ve cut down on mistakes.”

Which, of course, is critical for any pitcher striving to be a No. 1.

“You make mistakes in this league, and hitters won’t miss them,” Sabathia says. “You don’t forget your mistakes, because lots of times they get hit a long way.”

Sabathia’s emergence as a staff leader, and potential bonafide industry-recognized No. 1 starter couldn’t come at a better time for the Indians. With the Tribe rebuilding around a young pitching staff, Sabathia, despite his youth, is already one of the veterans of the staff, and a cornerstone for the future.

"It's not mandatory to have a No.1 starter in order to be a contender," said Wedge. "But it is important to have leaders on your team and on your pitching staff. You need people on your team who can lead you to where you want to go."

Indians officials feel Sabathia can be, and, to a certain extent, already is, the leader of the pitching staff.

Sabathia himself, is eager to assume that role.

"I want to be the guy out there stopping losing streaks, the guy all of my teammates want out there when we have to win a big game," he said.

Those, of course, are two more characteristics of a No.1 starter. A true No.1 starter, not an imposter.

"There's a big difference between being the Opening Day starter and being a true No.1 starter," Wedge says. "There are not 30 No.1 starters in the Major Leagues. But C.C. is definitely traveling down the road to being a No.1 starter."

And perhaps nobody can appreciate the importance of having a dependable No.1 starter than a manager.

"To me, a No.1 starter is a guy you can count on," says Wedge. "You know exactly what you are going to get from him from start to start. A No.1 will step up when you're in a tough stretch of games, and win his game. You know he'll get you deep into just about every game he pitches. C.C. has worked very hard at this. He knows the responsibility that comes with being a No.1 starter. And he knows that a No.1 starter leads by example."

Sabathia has been not just a good example, and a staff leader, but also remarkably consistent. From All-Star Game to All-Star Game, 2002 to 2003, his record was 15-8.

And the best may be yet to come for Sabathia this season. In his first two years in the league, his combined record in the second half of the season was 17-6. Clearly, this is a pitcher who gets better as the season progresses – another desirable trait for a No.1 starter.

And when the Indians are ready to return to the post season, Sabathia has experience there as well.

He was the winning pitcher in the Indians last post-season victory, Game 3 of the 2001 Division Series, a 17-2 Tribe win over Seattle, in which Sabathia pitched six innings, holding the 116-win Mariners to two runs.

"Out of all the games I've pitched in my career, that's probably the one I learned the most from," says Sabathia. "I had a bad first inning, but then we scored some runs, and I was able to get it together, and pitch six innings."

No. 1 starters are not only productive and reliable, they are also durable. And Sabathia couldn't be more durable. In his 2-1/2 years in the Major Leagues, he has never spent a day on the disabled list.

All of which speaks to a bright future for a pitcher who has gone from being a first-round pick – the 20th player taken overall – in the 1998 June Draft, to a pitcher who appears to be on the verge of joining that elusive group of elite No.1 starters.

"I don't have any specific goals for the future," Sabathia said. "I just want to keep trying to win games."

And that, when you get right down to it, is the No.1 starter's No.1 responsibility. To win games. Big ones. Small ones. And everything in between. Because No.1 starters are, first and foremost, winners. A No.1 starter is a pitcher who, on days he pitches, makes sure it's the other team's starter who is the losing pitcher.

Shapiro feels that Sabathia has all the required tools, including the leadership qualities necessary, to be the point man for the Indians rotation as they move through their rebuilding phase and back into contention.

"The thing I like most about C.C.," says Shapiro, "is that he's still learning, and he's still getting better, even though he has accomplished at age 22 what most pitchers would love to accomplish by age 28."

How To Get Involved with CIC...

Indians fans help to generate money for CIC by participating in the various fund-raising activities hosted by CIC each season. In 2003, CIC will generate funds through the following programs and events:

First Pitch Luncheon Wednesday, April 9

Tribe fans are invited to welcome the Tribe back to Cleveland at the first CIC event of 2003. Held at the Convocation Center at Cleveland State University, this is an opportunity for fans to meet the entire roster of players and coaches. They will hear from new Indians Manager Eric Wedge on his outlook for the upcoming season, and also from several players. The event includes a special 45-minute post-luncheon autograph session and a commemorative gift for all fans in attendance.

Garage Sale

Saturday, August 23

This is a baseball collector's dream sale! It's like a trip down memory lane at the Second Annual Cleveland Indians Charities Garage Sale. For sale will be items like game-worn jerseys, used player bats, signed baseballs and photos, street-pole banners, and
